is offering

CLASSES FOR HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

The Museum of East Texas will offer classes for high school students June 1-4, 2010 from 1:00 to 4:00 pm. Class registration costs include art supplies! Classes are dependent on minimum enrollment.

Ceramics with David Fortner

This course will provide students with a foundation in basic pottery techniques as well as additive and subtractive sculptural processes. Appropriate for introductory and intermediate level students; returning students will be allowed to work at their own pace, building on previously acquired skills.

Acrylic Painting with Ann Reyes

This course will present the basic techniques used in acrylic painting and introduce students to the "daily painting" concept where a small original painting will be created each day. A variety of subjects will be used for these exciting projects.

Photography with Scott Strickland

High school students will gain an understanding of advanced concepts in photography, involving technical as well as conceptual techniques in photography. Students will be introduced to the concepts of F-stops, reciprocity, and design, as well as studio photography, commercial photography, and the importance of the photograph as a work of art.
